(Data Source: Ohio Department of Education)

Description of Data:

February 2016 Note: Ohio Teacher Evaluation System results for the 2015 Report are not yet available. Revised Educator Preparation Performance Reports will be published when these data become available.

Ohio's system for evaluating teachers (Ohio's Teacher Evaluation System) provides educators with a detailed view of their performance, with a focus on specific strengths and opportunities for improvement. The system is research-based and designed to be transparent, fair, and adaptable to the specific contexts of Ohio's school districts. Furthermore, it builds on what educators know about the importance of ongoing assessment and feedback as a powerful vehicle to support improved practice. Teacher performance and student academic growth are the two key components of Ohio's evaluation system.

Limitations of the Ohio Teacher Evaluation System (OTES) Data:

1. The information in the report is for those individuals receiving their licenses with effective years of 2011, 2012, 2013, and 2014.
2. The teacher evaluation data in this report are provided by the Ohio Department of Education.
3. Due to Ohio law, results must be masked for institutions with fewer than 10 completers with OTES data.

Value-Added Data for Students Taught by Teachers Prepared by Ohio Educator Preparation Providers at Teach for America

Reporting Period from Sept 1, 2014 to Aug 31, 2015

Description of Data:

February 2016 Note: Value-Added results for the 2015 Report are not yet available. Revised Educator Preparation Performance Reports will be published when these data become available.

Ohio's value-added data system provides information on student academic gains. As a vital component of Ohio's accountability system, districts and educators have access to an extensive array of diagnostic data through the Education Value-Added Assessment System (EVAAS). Schools can demonstrate through value-added data that many of their students are achieving significant progress. Student growth measures also provide students and parents with evidence of the impact of their efforts. Educators and schools further use value-added data to inform instructional practices.

Limitations of the Value-Added Data:

1. The information in the report is for those individuals receiving their licenses with effective years of, 2011, 2012, 2013, and 2014.
2. The value-added data in this report are those reported by Ohio's Education Value-Added Assessment System (EVAAS) based on reading and mathematics achievement tests in grades 4-8.
3. For Educator Preparation Providers with fewer than 10 linked teachers or principals with value-added data, only the number (N) is reported.

Excellence and Innovation Initiatives

Reporting Period from Sept 1, 2014 to Aug 31, 2015
(Data Source: Teach for America)

Description of Data:

This section reflects self-reported information from Ohio Educator Preparation Providers on a maximum of three initiatives geared to increase excellence and support innovation in the preparation of Ohio educators.

Teacher Preparation Programs

Initiative:	Content Learning Teams
Purpose:	Improve rigor of instruction in major content areas
Goal:	Teachers deliver, on average, more than one year's academic growth in a single academic year
Strategy:	Teach For America corps members meet with their Content Learning Teams monthly. Teams are led by teachers and instructional coaches experienced in that specific content area and offer corps members a content-aligned community. During meetings, teams develop both short and long-term strategies to increase the rigor of their instruction. Topics covered include unpacking Common Core standards for long-term backwards planning, tracking student mastery in content specific ways including through performance assessments, writing assessment questions that identify student misconceptions, developing differentiation strategies and small group instruction based on student data, and developing systems for recording anecdotal evidence and analyzing that evidence to monitor progress on key developmental indicators in Pre-K classes.
Demonstration of Impact:	According to a recent study by Mathematica Policy Research, students assigned to TFA teachers scored higher than those assigned to comparison teachers on end-of-year math tests; the difference in scores is equivalent to the gains from an additional 2.6 months of math instruction.
Initiative:	Rigorous, Research-Based Selection Process
Purpose:	Recruit individuals with the traits, skills, expertise and leadership potential to be highly-effective in high-need classrooms.
Strategy:	Every year, we analyze the backgrounds and applications of our most effective teachers to refine our data-driven selection model. Over the past 24 years, we've found that while there is no specific personality profile or background that predicts success in the classroom, certain traits are common to those teachers who lead their students to the greatest outcomes. Among them: ? A deep belief in the potential of all kids and a commitment to do whatever it takes to expand opportunities for students, often informed by experience in low-income communities and an understanding of the systemic challenges of poverty and racism; ? Demonstrated leadership ability across a variety of settings Strong achievement in academic, professional, extracurricular, and/or volunteer settings; ? Perseverance in the face of challenges, ability to adapt to changing environments, and a strong desire to do whatever it takes to improve and develop Long-term commitment to reaching goals in various settings; ? Excellent critical thinking skills, including the ability to accurately link cause and effect and to generate relevant solutions to problems.
Demonstration of Impact:	A 2011 Harvard University study found that Teach For America's selection model successfully identifies teachers who will have a positive impact on student achievement. The study finds that the selection criteria, as a whole, helps predict who will be most successful right out of the gate in their first year of teaching. More specifically, the findings show that three competencies are associated with student gains in math and two with gains in English during a teacher's first year in the classroom.

Initiative:	In-Classroom Coaching Support
Purpose:	Accelerate skill development of first- and second-year teachers
Goal:	Teachers deliver, on average, more than one year's academic growth in a single academic year.
Strategy:	Every corps member receives 1:1 coaching, professional development and regular classroom visits from teacher coach provided by Teach For America. These instructional coaches come from a variety of backgrounds but all spent several years as highly successful teachers in a low-income settings. Each coach supports a cohort of teachers, typically grouped by content area and grade level (e.g., 1 coach supporting secondary teachers, 1 coach supporting early grades teachers). Along with regularly reviewing lesson plans, helping corps members adjust to the challenges of being a first year teacher, coaches conduct regular observations, interview students, provide feedback, and run skill-building workshops. Many of the education majors who join Teach For America cite this level of in-classroom support as their primary motivation for becoming a corps member.
Demonstration of Impact:	Three states ? North Carolina, Tennessee and Lousiana ? have studies the effectiveness of corps members compared to other teacher preparation pathways. In all three, Teach For America emerged as one of the most effective sources of teachers, based on student outcomes.
