- VIII. Discussions (12:20-1:50) All
- a) Instruction for the Small Regional Group Discussions (12:20-12:30)
 - b) Discussion in Regional Groups (12:30-1:50)
 - For each associated major within the cluster that you are discussing, what learning outcomes and other educational experiences are essential in the first two years so the student can transfer to a four-year institution with junior standing? What general education (English Composition, Mathematics, Arts/Humanities, Social and Behavioral Sciences, and Natural Sciences) and pre-major courses are typically associated with the learning outcomes and educational experiences? Are these courses readily available at community colleges? Are there expected learning outcomes within a program's first two years that are not covered in courses that are part of Ohio's guaranteed transfer system?
 - For each associated major within the cluster you are discussing, what essential elements of the learning experience for native four-year university freshmen and sophomores may be hard to replicate for community college students seeking to transfer? What essential elements are community colleges offering to their students that universities don't include for native students until the junior or senior year? What could university and/or community colleges offer as alternatives to solve these challenges?
 - What is the best approach to the development of cluster and major pathways within the first two years of study? In other words, is there enough consistency in courses across the majors within the cluster for students to take a common first semester or a common first year? How soon will students need to declare a specific major within the cluster in order not to lose efficiency? (A cluster approach may be advantageous because it allows a student to take classes for a semester or two within the cluster while still determining the specific major. However, it is not advantageous if the student ends up taking classes that don't apply to his or her program.) What is the right balance?
 - What are your success stories about pathway development and partnerships from which we can all learn?

(Break – 1:50-2:05)
 - c) Discussion in Large Group (2:05-3:05)
 - What approach should be used to construct the transfer pathways? Should the Statewide Panel develop a set of discipline specific associate degree learning outcomes that colleges and universities could match courses to? Should the Statewide Panel use existing statewide guaranteed courses to develop maps to create clear course sequences? Should it be a combination of the two approaches?
 - Is the cluster approach the right approach? Or should we go directly to major pathways? If the cluster approach works, how soon will students need to declare a specific major within the cluster in order not to lose efficiency?

- Did you find examples of learning experiences that occur in the first two years for native university students that would be hard to replicate for community college students? If so, could you identify alternatives that can be provided by the community college so that students' junior-year standing is not compromised? Can these gaps be filled after students transfer?
- Share your success stories about pathway development and partnerships from which we can all learn.
